Two Multimedia Labs added to the University

IBM labs will run Windows 3.11 for Workgroups

Michelle Ross

The university has opened two new multimedia labs on North Campus for continuing Education students.

"Over the summer, there was a lot of demand for multi-media equipment," stated Howard Kaplan Director of Educational Computing.

The labs contain approximately 60 new window based IBM's.

Presently, the labs are used by continuing Education students in the evening only, but they will be opening during the day.

The labs are state-of-the-art, complete with projection systems and video-audio capabilities.

Hopefully, the labs will be open to all undergraduate students in the future. "We'd love to have undergrads use them for their courses," said Kaplan. "It's important for students to get this training."

Kaplan stresses that the course would be ideal for communications majors.

Students are Swept Off Their Feet by Letters to Cleo

Lisa Schurga

"We (the members of the Activities Commission) were very, very happy with the show," said Pete Stramese Director of the Activities Commission.

Stramese is speaking of the Letters to Cleo concert held at Cumnock Hall Thursday night, which over 1,000 students attended. The concert was opened by another local Boston band, Gravel Pit. According to Mary Connolly, Director of Student Activities and Commuter Services, Letters to Cleo specifically requested that Gravel Pit open for them.

The tickets for the concert went on sale at the Student Information Centers on both North and South Campuses first thing Tuesday morning. According to SIC employees there was a line of ticket buyers out the door as early as 9:15am. Connolly stated, "The Activities Commission worked hard and got a great band and the students responded."

All the tickets were sold out by Thursday morning and SIC employees dealt with broken-hearted students. Dana Maxwell, student manager said, "Some people were so upset. They were in disbelief that there was no way for them to get a ticket."

Even the Activities Commission aware that Letters to Cleo would be real popular with the students, was shocked to see how fast the tickets were going. Concert Chairperson Melissa Riccio said, "It made me nervous that they were selling out so fast."

Riccio is the person that put the concert together. She approached the band through an agent and worked on the contracts this summer. As concert chairperson she planned everything up to the night of the concert. Stramese dealt with the day of the concert details. He was there to "help the show run smoothly."

Stramese met with the band when they arrived at UMass Lowell. "They got in around 4pm. They had just finished a tour and they were real laid back."

Members of The Gravel Pit opened the show without hesitation.

mented at one point, "You guys aren't behaving very well."

Connolly said, "People got enthusiastic and the mosh pit was bigger than expected. People were being dropped and tossed to people who didn't even see them coming."

Although there were some injuries, including a girl who had to get stitches in her head, all AC members felt that security did an excellent job. Stramese commented, "Security (that was made up of DK members) did a great job with the barricades and handling the mosh pit."

All and all, students and AC members felt that the night was a huge success. There was a lot of good energy between the band and the audience and everybody roared when the band made conversation in between songs. At one point Kay even shared her huge bottle of water with an audience member. When he spit the water into the air she said, "What do you live in a fu—ng barn?" The crowd went nuts for that one.

Hall Council Elections are Coming Soon!

Ever wonder what you could do to make your building a better place to live? Wonder why other buildings have Pool Tables and yours does not? Wonder how to go on trips, have fun activities and make your building a better place? Well, Hall Council is the place to do it all - you can put all of your great ideas about what this campus should be like into action by running for a seat.

Hall council is the voice of the students in all the residence halls. They act as a liaison between students, the staff, the administration, and the Residence Hall Association.

There is approximately 25,000 dollars budgeted between the hall councils and RHA and that money is used to bring activities to the buildings and the campus as a whole. They also have a hand in activities for Spring Carnival, Family Day, and more!

How, you may ask, do you get involved in this fantastic organization? Well, there are currently open in all of the buildings president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and two senator positions. There are also wing representatives and other positions just waiting for you to take them.

To get elected, simply pick up a nomination sheet from your building office, or from your Resident Advisor. Go out and talk to the people in your building about what it is you would like to see happen in the hall (and while you're at it, get twenty-five of them to sign your nomination papers). That's all there is to it.

Nomination papers must be turned into your RD by 5 pm on Friday, September 15th. You can place banners, hold debates, bring people to lunch, whatever you like. Then, on the 19th and 20th, hall elections will be held in the lobbies of all the buildings.

If you would like more information about Hall Council, RHA, or elections, feel free to contact any of these people:

Jamie Fera EXT. 5261
Sarah White EXT. 5365
Kristine Amman EXT. 6419

They'll be glad to help you out. See you at the polls!

Want to be an RA?

The office of Residence Life will soon be holding an October search process to find energetic involved students who wish to become Resident Advisors.

Applications can be picked up at the Office of University Life in cumnock hall from 9 am to 5 pm.

The only requirements are that you have at least 1 semester of living on campus and have an GPA of at least 2.2.

Residential Orientation Gets a New Look

On Saturday, September 2, 400 new residents showed up at the residential north quad for the 1st Annual Residential orientation Block party.

The quad had been transformed into a carnival atmosphere with tire tossing, prizes, cotton candy, face painting, caricatures and lots of prizes.

An Air volley ball court, which is a game that combines the bounciness of a moon walk with the skill of volleyball, was joined by a dunk tank where students had an opportunity to dunk the Staff of different building.

Another crowd catcher was the ever-treacherous Bungy-Run. Here, competitors don a belt that is connected to a bungy cord and run the length of a giant air-filled runway. The object was to see how far you could get before the cord snaps you back wards through that air.

The second half of the night was dominated by the musical talents of Skin, which attracted a very large crowd of students from the party. Skin, a band composed of university students, played a repertoire of jazz funk tunes which rocked the evening.

Returning to the orientation weekend this year, and still as popular as ever was Tommy Vee, hypnotist extraordinaire. 300 students howled as Tommy Vee placed members of the audience into a trance and had them perform outrageous scenes. From turning them into erotic dancers, or having them sell fresh fish to the audience, each new turn was more hilarious than the last. If you still can not remember your last name, or are still missing your belly button, Tommy Vee can be reached through the office of Residential Life.

The block party was a major change from the way Residential orientations had ben run in the past. Annie Ciaraldi, Assistant Director of Residence Life and Chairperson of the Residential Orientation Committee, says that the committee wanted an atmosphere that was fun yet more relaxed than previous years.

The Residential Orientation Committee, or ROC, is composed mostly of students on Residence Life staff who work over the summer planning and running the weekend. The attendance and enjoyment of the students who attended the party would suggest that the committee was successful in making this year one of the best orientations ever.

The orientation week was co-sponsored by the Office of Residential Life and the Resident Hall Association.

Ask The RA

Have a question, comment, concern about life on campus? Would you like to get a straight answer to the questions that are concerning you? Each week, the editors of this page will answer questions asked by inquisitive students. As the old saying goes, "The only dumb question is the one not asked."

"Why do we have 'quiet hours' , "Can the school organize a trip to a Pat's game?" and "What is it, exactly, that those people with the radios do?" are some of the past questions that have been asked, but they can be about anything.

So, if you have a question about an issue on campus, a request, a concern, an idea, submissions can be sent to The Connector office, Fox Hall, room 426, care of the Residence Life page, or to your building office.

We will try to answer as many as possible each week and hopefully, we can respond to all of them.

New Peoples Meeting

We would like to extend a warm welcome to those of you returning to campus at the start of a new semester. We would like to afford all students the opportunity to assist in the production of the student newspaper.

For those interested in journalism, there are openings in all features departments: News- staff writers, reporters and essayists are needed. Strong writing skills are recommended or a willingness to develop such skills. Arts and Entertainment- staff writers, critics and essayists are needed. Students interested in film, music, literature, the fine arts and the area's cultural and historical offerings are encouraged to write for the A&E section. Sports- staff writers, reporters are needed to cover regional and campus sporting events.

For those interested in the area of newspaper production/ Desktop Publishing, there are openings in the Production department. A willingness to learn is all that is necessary.

Those interested in the world of advertising are welcome to fill positions in the advertising department.

The student newspaper is intended to serve as the voice of the student body. Without your participation- your cares and concerns will not be heard !

From the Editor's Desk

On behalf of the Connector staff I would like to extend a hearty welcome to all new and returning students of UMass Lowell! I hope that all are beginning the semester with a fresh and open mind, ready to tackle all that will be thrown at us, so that when we finish our last final in December we can confidently say that we learned and are the better for it.

Much has changed on campus this summer. Several labs have been remodeled and/or reconstructed. Included are the Centers for Learning computer lab on North Campus and the chemical engineering lab. Costello gym has also undergone a reconstruction which is being finished with a few final coats of paint.

On an administrative level Chancellor Hogan is working hard at accomplishing his goal of reducing the number of faculty and staff on campus so that the student to faculty ratio is 17:1 and also so that the university can balance its budget. If this is done properly the student body should suffer no ill effects because we now have fewer students on campus than in years past so it logically follows that we should have less faculty and staff than in years past.

On a Connector level we are currently in the hiring process for a full-time secretary. Our former secretary, Sue Pelletier, resigned and we wish her luck in her new job. Things have been hectic around here but I expect them to settle down soon, especially with the help of a secretary. You'll notice several changes in the layout of this and future issues. The editorial staff spent many hours in the office this summer with the hopes of producing a new and improved Connector. We would appreciate your comments concerning these changes. If you would like to help us out and contribute to your newspaper our meetings are Tuesday nights at 6:30 pm in Fox 426. Our new people's meeting will be held on September 19. All are welcome. If there is something on campus that you would like to know more about, come down and ask us!

Welcome Back! The new school year brings with it a new leadership in Student Government. As the new President of Student Government, I am committed to serving the needs not only of on-campus students but also of commuter students. Many challenges lie ahead creating ample opportunity for students to get involved on campus. Challenges, such as, beautifying the campus courtyards, restructuring student budgets, reducing the red tape involved in club budgets, and to ensure continued growth of teacher evaluations. Student involvement is crucial for the long term success of any University, and Student Government elections allow an opportunity to get involved in the political process at UMass Lowell. Student Government elections will be held on Wednesday, October 11th. Nomination papers will be available on September 22nd in the Student Information Centers and the SGA Office, Fox 411. There are seven senate seats available for the Class of 1999 as well as the class officer positions. In addition, there are open senate positions in the Classes of 1996, 1997 and 1998. If you are interested in getting involved in the Student Government, please feel free to contact the Student Government Office at 934-5004.

Sincerely,

Christian L. Doherty, President
Student Government

Student Government sponsored elections will be held on Wednesday, October 11, 1995 from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the McGauvran Student Union and the North Commuter Lounge.

Nomination Papers will be available on Friday, September 22, 1995 in the Student Information Centers (S.I.C.'s) on North and South Campus and the S.G.A. Office in Fox 411. Papers can be picked up each day no earlier than 9:00 a.m. and must be returned no later than 12:00 noon on Friday, September 29, 1995.

PLEASE NOTE: All nomination papers must be returned to the S.G.A. Office, Fox 411.

Fee Rollback

-- Brian Andriolo, Student Trustee

To begin with, I would like to welcome all the new students onto our illustrious campus and wish you all nothing but the best in your college endeavors. I would like to update you all on the important issue of our fee charges for the academic year that is suddenly upon us. As you returning students know, a large number of Lowell students took part in a lobbying effort last spring in an attempt to increase the state budget allocation for the UMass system. This effort took the form of a highly successful lobbying day at the Statehouse, where we were able to meet with state representatives and senators; as well as phone calls made by students who were unable to attend. As a result of our efforts, we were able to persuade legislators to override Governor Weld's veto and provide UMass with a $10.2 million increase in state funding, $1.3 million of which came directly to the Lowell campus. I would like to personally thank everyone who participated in last year's efforts and those who helped me lobby this summer to override the Governor's veto.

As a result of this additional money, our fee increases were rolled back this year to a $1 increase (for insurance purposes), down from an original increase of $130, as decided in a prior agreement made with Chancellor Hogan. Over the last two years, we have had to endure fee increases totaling only $5. These are by far the lowest increases across the UMass system and some of the lowest in the country (if not the lowest). UMass Dartmouth was given a $297 fee increase this year while UMass Boston was given a $102 increase. The Amherst campus received a modest $47 increase as well. This shows that if we work hard and are unified, we can prevent drastic increases in our tuition and fee rates and positively affect the quality of our education here at UMass Lowell.

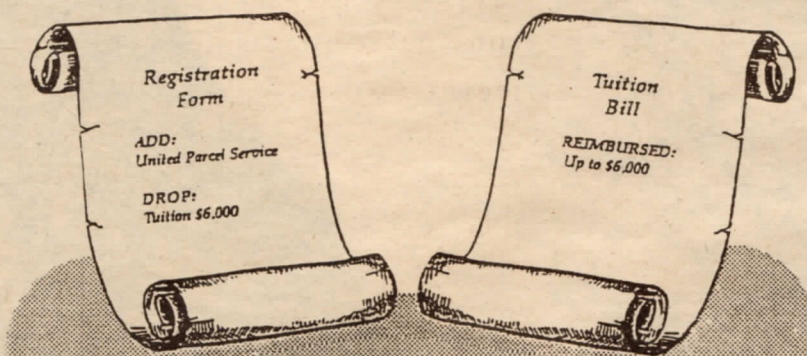

However, the flip side to this good news is that we are still the third most expensive public university in the country (we dropped from second to third just this year) and have not yet fully recovered from the deep budget cuts imposed on us by the Commonwealth during the late 1980's and early 1990's. This means that we still have a lot of work to do.

There is a very important bill currently in the State Legislature that is vital to the interests of the students at UMass Lowell. It is a capital outlay bill that will provide us state funds for the upkeep of our buildings, to improve our technology, and hopefully to fund our new student center that will be built in the near future. If we don't get this money from the state, then we will have to pay for these projects either with increases in our fees or further cutbacks in student services and student jobs. These are unacceptable alternatives for us, so we must continue to be involved in lobbying for the vital state funds.

How can you get involved in these tasks? It's simple. I'm setting up a campus-wide advocacy committee, similar to last year's Statehouse Day effort, to represent UMass Lowell's needs by lobbying the State Legislature for our badly needed funds. The committee is open to any student, staff member, or member of the faculty at UMass Lowell who wishes to join. Your time commitment will be as much or as little time that you can afford to give. You can contribute simply by making a few phone calls or writing a few letters to representatives and senators or, more directly, by coming with me and a bunch of other students to meet with them in person at the Statehouse. We will be working very closely with the other UMass campuses on this issue, as well as with President Penney's office in Boston.

I hope that you will take the time to help out in improving life here on campus. For resident students, it's a chance to improve what you now consider to be home. For commuter students, it's a chance to truly feel like you're a part of the UMass Lowell community. If this interests you, please call me and leave a message at 934-5005 and I will get back to you. Thank you very much and enjoy the school year.

MEAT LOAF

It's served every Thursday in the dining hall. And the scary thing is, people actually eat it. Maybe they don't see those white chunks floating in the gray beef. Or maybe they're just really hungry. Whatever their reason, you want no part of it. You know what great meat loaf is all about. You had the best for 18 years. So you call mom to let her know she's the Queen of Meat Loaf. ## A Review of Too Wong Foo

Angela Rivera

Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis did it in Some Like It Hot. More recently, Terence Stamp did it in Australia's The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert. They're currently doing it on the soap opera General Hospital. What is this trendy thing to do?

Whatever it is, they're doing it in drag (Z-snap, honey).

The reactions will be mixed as audiences get to see three of their favorite action, drama, and comedy 'hunks' parading around in fringe and feather boas in To Wong Foo Thanks for Everything Julie Newmar (Dir. Beebon Kidron, Screenplay Douglas Carter Beane, 3 stars out of 4). Some of the most masculine stars in Hollywood clawed it out in their control tops and press-ons for the roles in this Spielberg-fronted story about three drag queens who end up taking a wrong turn into Snyder'sville, Nebraska while on a trip from New York City to Hollywood. The three lucky girls who won the roles: Wesley Snipes, the action adventurer known for such movies as Drop Zone, Passenger 57, and Rising Sun; comedian John Leguizamo; and Patrick Swayze, best known for Dirty Dancing and Ghost.

The film's parallels to Priscilla are obvious: their mode of transportation breaks down and puts our heroines in a bind, they encounter prejudice, and (best part) they get what they want in the end. However, considering the storyline, To Wong Foo is not as realistically convincing. Even so, it'll make you laugh. Snipes introduces hi-uh, herself as "Noxeema Jackson, Jesse's daughter."

Swayze is Ms. Vida Boheme, the sensitive girl who, in the blink of a false eyelash, takes on the problems of their battered Snyder'sville host (played by Stockard Channing). Leguizamo is the tag-along "little Latin boy in a dress" Chi Chi Rodriguez, who breathes comedic life into his bustier. With lines like "I think he's prejudiced" and "How romantical", Leguizamo takes the Latin stereotype one step further into laughter. There isn't a moment when one doubts Chi Chi's womanhood; she is the prettiest of the screen queens, and her interaction with Noxeema is classic.

As entertaining as it is, To Wong Foo is truly American: drag queens go in to quaint little white prejudiced town, drag queens fix prejudice. It's not that easy, whatever Hollywood and Amblin Entertainment believe. But, though one can't resist the comparison to Priscilla, To Wong Foo stands alone in its own right as a faaaabulous comedy. Put on your feather boas girls, you're going to have a ball. No pun intended (Rated PG-13; playing nationally as of September 8th).

Jewels and Junk

Rent any good movies lately? With the mountain of movies on video, it's often hard to know what you're going to get. Let's sort the jewels from the junk by diving into this mucky sea of cinematography.

Starting off with the jewels (neither category is arranged in any particular order)...

—Interview With the Vampire
Kirsten Dunst's voracious performance of a 30 year-old in a child's body is underrated; much like Cruise's performance is overrated. Anne Rice liked it and I agree; a must see if you can stand the vampire gore.

—Legends of the Fall
Our second (and last) Brad Pitt movie of the day. Aside from the cheesy backlighting of Pitt's Fabio-golden locks, this is an epic drama with cathartic twists and turns. It's lengthy, but well worth the rental.

—The Brady Bunch Movie
If you've never watched them on TV, you'll see the Bradys as a bunch of dorky 70's losers misplaced in the 90's. If you have watched them, you'll see the Bradys as a bunch of dorky 70's losers misplaced in the 90's with meaning.

Sleeper of the season, not much mainstream advertising for this one. A very poignant commentary about the media's idolatry of a common teen, Cliff Spab (Stephen Dorff), who is taken hostage with two of his friends by a psychotic troupe of filmmakers with machine guns at the Fun Stop (kind of like a Charter/Circle K). S.F.W. sends the media message more clearly than Natural Born Killers.

—Higher Learning
John Singleton captures college life like Van Gogh's Starry Night—colors swirling, crashing against each other with a paradoxical harmony and violence; however, there is truth to it, and it all seems to make sense in to one big portrait. Have a floor/apartment/house party for this one.

—Tank Girl
If you're not into multi-media, forget this one. Tank Girl combines still comic drawings with animation and live film; don't worry—it's more mainstream than it sounds. Tank Girl, Rebecca (Lori Petty), is a Madonna on acid grunge goddess with a penchant for spitting in the face of authority. The only thing(s) that might seem a little strange in the story are the Rippers, an experimental breed of mangaroos. Go fig.

...and saving the worst for last:

—Street Fighter
Jean-Claude Van Dumb. Stupid attempt at giving a valid storyline to all of the Street Fighter video game characters in the frame of 100 minutes. Go see Mortal

Kombat if you truly need to see a movie based on a video game.

—The Quick and the Dead
Jeffrey Craig (60-minute Review) wasn't kidding when he said that "This is the most original western in years." How was Gene Hackman roped into this one? He probably wanted to see Sharon Stone up close, like 90% of the red-blooded American males out there. If you like a laugh, this one's pathetic enough.

—Wes Craven's New Nightmare
What a nightmarish waste of a rental. All of the scary parts were used in the trailers, so there were no surprises here. Freddy—you're supposed to be dead. Go home.

—Miami Rhapsody
Highly overrated. Yes, Antonio Banderas was sexy and humorous, but the rest of the cast was as funny as a splinter under your fingernail. Skip it!

There's my critical advice on what and what not to rent, though your taste in movies may differ. It's all in good review, so if you ever need something to do, you know you've been forewarned. This week I'll be catching Pulp Fiction, Major Payne, and a few others that are slated to come out. Until then, rent wisely.

HOW TO USE THE BATHROOM.

Do you know that you use up to 55 gallons of water a day in the bathroom? It's true. So here's some simple bathroom training to help conserve water. Turn off the faucet while brushing your

TOOMEY SHINES IN OPENER

Freshman Katie Toomey leads the way as Lowell routs Stonehill 3-0 in volleyball season opener.

The UMass Lowell Volleyball team's opening night victory over Stonehill College this past Wednesday night marked the debut of highly touted freshman sensation Katie Toomey, and what a sensation she is. If Toomey's performance is any indication of things to come, Lowell has a true superstar on its' hands. Couple that with UML returning the entire roster from last year's squad and we could be looking at a pretty successful team for the next couple of years. Not only was this Toomey's first game in the River Hawk red & blue, but the 3-0 victory is sweet revenge for two lopsided losses (3-1, 3-0) at the hands of Stonehill College last season.

With the crowd still filling into Costello Gym, Lowell jumped out to a quick 7-2 lead, with Toomey and junior captain Katie Wohlfarth leading the offense with their powerful hitting. As often happens with early-season contests, Lowell got a little sloppy towards the middle of the game and let Stonehill rally to tie the game at 11. But, unlike last year where the team might have struggled to regain the momentum, the team showed their character and pulled things together to win 5 of the last 6 points for the 15-12 win.

The second game progressed in much the same fashion as the first, with Lowell jumping out quickly, only to have Stonehill close the gap once again. The turning point of the game came when Toomey, using her 24" vertical leap to it's fullest, hammered a kill, drawing a grimace of pain from the Stonehill player unfortunate enough to get in the way of the blasted ball. The River Hawks used this play to grab the momentum and finish off the game 15-9.

The third game was a bit more of a chore for the squad from Lowell, with Stonehill playing noticeably better than in the previous two games. The Chieftains took a quick 2-0 lead before both teams settled into a groove and played dead-even until the game was knotted at 10. Like the previous two games, Lowell had to reach down for something extra to finish the pesky team from Stonehill College. When the team needed them the most, the veterans stepped to the front and took control of the game, with senior captain Tara Conners brought into the game to settle down the troops with her experience and junior Liz Noble putting away kill after kill for the 15-11 final score.

Although most of the excitement surrounding this match was due to Toomey's performance, Lowell has more to be happy about than just the play of their super-freshmen. Of particular note was the stellar all-around play of Wohlfarth and sophomore Bethany Giles. Wohlfarth, who last year was a little on the inconsistent side, had no trouble maintaining a peak level of performance for the duration of the match. Giles, who came on strong at the end of last year after a breakthrough effort at the River Hawk Classic, appears to have improved over the summer and has added a jump serve to her arsenal. With the addition of Toomey, the ever-improving Wohlfarth and Giles, and the consistent good play from Noble, this team is poised for a very successful campaign in 1995.

Sports Speak...

with Drew Poirier

What a week in sports! Cal Ripken Jr. broke Lou Gehrig's consecutive games played streak; Dion Sanders signed a 6-year deal with the Dallas Cowboys; and the Patriots had "their head handed to them" by the Miami Dolphins. With all this going on, we have to be especially excited about the sports scene here in New England. The fall and winter months should be hot with the Red Sox in the Post-Season. The expected success of the patriots (forget about Sunday's game); and the Bruins could have one of the most potent first lines in the NHL with newly acquired Kevin Stevens joining Neely, Oates, Bourque, and Iafate (if healthy). That leaves only the Celtics. Well, the Fleet Center is opening, so that should at least make it interesting. With the Patriots probably a year or two away from serious Super Bowl contention and the Bruins' hopes resting on the health of Cam Neely and Al Iafate; the most exciting prospect in post-season play could very well be the Red Sox.

But as good as the Red Sox can be, there are still many "ifs" with them. One of the biggest question marks for the Sox is the pitching of Tim Wakefield. If anyone has been watching Wakefield over his last half dozen starts or so, you have to be wondering if his magical ride through the first half of the season was an aberration. We can only hope that he doesn't do what he did with Pittsburgh a couple of years ago. For those of you who can't remember what Wakefield did; he was unhittable when he first came up and in the playoffs. But he couldn't get anybody out for the next two years. Let's just keep our fingers crossed and hope that he can return to the form that had people talking the Awards Crown (Most Improved Player, Most Valuable Player, and the Cy Young). The thing that worries me the most is the potential first round match-up with the Seattle Mariners. If the Mariners win the WildCard, they will play the Red Sox and could pose a significant threat to the Sox' World Series dreams. There are two major reasons I feel this way: 1.) The series will be the best of 5, which means if the series goes the distance, the Red Sox will have to face the most dominate lefty in baseball, Randy Jackson. What he will do is virtually nullify Vaughan, Greenwell, and O'Leary. 2.) The Mariners are an extremely patient club at the plate, which could be trouble for Wakefield if he doesn't regain control of his knuckleball. Another "if" that the Sox' World Series drive hinges on is whether Eric Hanson can throw his curveball.

So if the Patriots can get their act together; the Bruins can stay healthy; and the Red Sox can answer a couple of big questions this can be a very fun year for

A Letter From The Editor

Well, here we are again. Back at Lowell for another year of school, fun, and sports; and if you're a freshman—welcome. For those of you who were here last year, you probably remember that I was looking for writers for my sports staff. I still am. I'm looking for anybody that has an interest in writing about sports, and it doesn't even have to be the varsity sports either, we run articles about many clubs like the Karate and Rugby clubs, as well as the recognized varsity athletics here at UMass Lowell. So, you can write about basically whatever you want. If you want to cover solely one sport, fine, if you want to write about different stuff each week, that's great too; even if you don't want to make a major commitment and write every week you can still submit stuff periodically or write an occasional opinion piece for the Sports Speak column.

For anyone that isn't quite sure about what sports we have during the fall and winter months, let me enlighten you. Obviously there is the football team, led by senior quarterback Dana Boudreau, and then there's the field hockey team, which plays on the field located behind Sheehy Hall on South Campus. For the first time we have men's and women's soccer, with the women's team making its' Division II home debut on Thursday against Stonehill. If you read the article on the previous page then you already know about the volleyball team and their young gun Katie Toomey. We also have tennis and golf, so there is something for everyone in the fall here at Lowell. A little later in the semester the winter sports begin with men's and women's basketball and hockey. The women's basketball team is looking to continue their stellar play from last year that won them the NECC title and an appearance in the NCAA Division II National Championship Tournament, while the men have the tough task of replacing Zack Zegarowski and Spencer Staggs, two key starters who graduated last year. The hockey team (which plays in one of the toughest divisions in the country, Hockey East) will once again tangle with the likes of Maine, Boston University, and Boston College, as well as second year Hockey East member UMass Amherst.

So, there is plenty to write about for the Connector and it would be great to have you on my staff. If anyone is interested you can either leave me a message at the Connector office (Fox Hall Rm. 426, 934-5009) or come to the first meeting of the year, tonight at 6:30 in the Connector office. I hope to hear from a lot of you.

New Mailing Addresses
 for Campus Mail Boxes

Mail Notice

The University has been working closely with the Lowell Post Office this Summer to improve mail service to the University. There has been a change made in the way mail must be addressed to all student mailboxes on campus. The correct way to address mail to a student is as follows:

South Campus Mailbox
Address:

Name of Student
 MS # (this was your box #)
 71 Wilder St.
 Lowell, MA 01854-3097

North Campus Mailbox
Address:

Name of Student
 MS# (this was your box #)
 35 Standish St.
 Lowell, MA 01854-2899

The designation of "MS" is an abbreviation for "Mail Stop" and must be used in place of the word "box" or "PO Box". The full nine digit zip code must also be used.

IMPORTANT!!

Do not include the University name in your address. This will cause a delay in the delivery of your mail.

Drive. Intensity. Those aren't words you're likely to see in many course requirements. Then again, Army ROTC is unlike any other elective. It's hands-on excitement. ROTC will challenge you mentally and physically through intense leadership training. Training that builds character, self-confidence and decision-making skills. Again, words other courses seldom use. But they're the credits you need to succeed in life. ROTC is open to freshmen and sophomores without obligation and requires about 4 hours per week. Register this term for Army ROTC.
